

A New 'Magna Carta'

for people with learning disabilities

We've been running workshops around the UK over the past 3 years to find out what the freedoms are that people with learning disabilities want.

Here are 10 rights that people with learning disabilities have told us that they want...

We need to be able to choose our support staff

We need to have happy staff

We need to be able to choose our friends and have a social life

We need to be able to choose where we live

We should have the right to have relationships and a sex life

We should be able to choose what time we go to bed at night

We should be able to choose how we spend our time

We should be welcome and active in our communities

We should not be referred to in negative ways in the media

We should have proper paid work
